

TITLE : AN INSURANCE PRODUCT

TECHNICAL BACKGROUND

This invention relates to an insurance product, to a method of insuring an article and to a method of compensating an insured person. The article may, in particular, be a vehicle, motor bike or boat.

Existing insurance products for motor vehicles typically provide that should an insured vehicle be damaged in an accident and the cost of repairing the vehicle be less than the value of the vehicle, the insurer undertakes to repair the motor vehicle or to pay for the reasonable cost of repairs. However, when the insured subsequently disposes of the repaired vehicle, which would be many months or even years later, he often finds that he is unable to obtain the usual market price for that kind of vehicle because of the fact that the vehicle has been involved in an accident, notwithstanding that the vehicle was competently repaired after the accident. The insured has accordingly suffered a loss as a result of the accident for which he has not been indemnified. The invention aims to indemnify the insured against such loss.

DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION

According to a first aspect of the invention there is provided an insurance product comprising a policy whereby the insurer undertakes to compensate an insured person for a loss incurred as a result of the actual consideration obtainable by the insured person for an article being less than an agreed minimum consideration, when the insured person disposes of the article.

The article may, in particular, be a motor vehicle.

The compensation may, in particular, be for a loss incurred as a result of the diminution in the value of the insured vehicle due to the vehicle having been damaged in an accident, notwithstanding that the vehicle was competently repaired after the accident. This is also known as "diminished value".

The compensation may be a whole or partial indemnification of the loss.

The actual consideration may be a sum of money or may be a discount granted by a dealer in respect of the purchase price of another vehicle when the insured person trades in the insured vehicle.

The minimum consideration may be an average price for vehicles of the same kind as the insured vehicle having regard to, inter alia, the make, model, age, condition and extent of use of the insured vehicle.

The average price may be that determined by an independent party.

5 The insurance product may provide that until the average price becomes available, the liability of the insurer shall be limited to a percentage of the retail value of the insured vehicle when new.

The insured person may pay to the insurer a premium by way of a series of payments or a single payment.

10 The insurance may only be effective after a predetermined time period, and may endure for a further predetermined time period.

The area in which the insurance applies may be limited.

15 The insurance product may stipulate that the vehicle must be new at the time when the insured person acquired it.

The insured person may be obliged to maintain the article in a satisfactory manner.

The insurance product may stipulate that repairs are to be effected by authorised repairers.

The insured vehicle may need to be disposed of in an arm's length manner.

The insured person may be obliged to sell or trade in the insured vehicle to a predetermined person or class of persons.

5 The insured person may be obliged to obtain a specified number of quotations from different dealers for the values at which the dealers are prepared to purchase or exchange the insured vehicle.

10 According to a second aspect of the invention there is provided a method of insuring an article which includes undertaking to compensate an insured person for a loss incurred as a result of the actual consideration obtainable by the insured person for the insured article being less than an agreed minimum consideration, when the insured disposes of the insured article.

15 According to a third aspect of the invention there is provided a method of compensating an insured person, when the insured person disposes of an insured article, for a loss as a result of the actual consideration obtainable by the insured person for the insured article being less than an agreed minimum consideration.

20 The compensation of the second and third aspects of the invention may, in particular, be for a loss incurred as a result of the diminution in the value of the insured article due to the article having been damaged in an accident, notwithstanding that the article was competently repaired after the accident.

The minimum consideration of the second and third aspects of the invention may be an average price for articles of the same kind as the insured article, as determined by an independent third party.

EXAMPLE

The invention will now be described, with reference to the following non-limiting illustrative example of an insurance product in accordance with the invention.

Tradeshield Price Protection Policy

Policy Preamble

This policy is the agreement for Trade-In Value Guaranteed insurance between Regent Insurance Company Limited (hereinafter referred to as "the Insurer") and the Insured named in the proposal form/schedule that forms part of this policy.

If there is no trade-in value in the "publication" the Insurer will pay the amount by which the trade-in or resale price is reduced by reason of the accident, not exceeding 2% of the retail price of the vehicle.

Premium

The premium payable to qualify for the benefits of the policy will be a percentage of the purchase price paid by the Insured for the vehicle stated in the schedule, subject to a minimum premium, as determined from time to time by the Insurer. Premium is due within 15 days of the purchase date of the vehicle stated in the schedule and must be paid no later than 15 days thereafter for cover to 20

The basis of the settlement is the difference between the highest available quotation in the market and the trade-in value as evidenced in the most recent publication of an agreed independent third party at the time of actual trade-in or re-sale of the insured vehicle, subject to the additional considerations referred to in the policy.

A single premium is due within 15 days of the date of the purchase by the insured person of the vehicle.

The insurance endures for the duration of any finance or lease agreement applicable to the vehicle, subject to a maximum period of 60 months if the vehicle is not the subject of a finance agreement.

The cover afforded by the policy is limited to vehicles driven within the Republic of South Africa, Namibia, Swaziland, Lesotho and Botswana.

The policy only covers an insured vehicle that is a new vehicle at the time when it is purchased by the insured person.

In order to claim, the insured person must obtain and submit to the insurer three quotations from different franchise dealers for the values at which the dealers are prepared to purchase or exchange the vehicle.

By means of the invention the insured person may be compensated for a loss incurred as a result of the actual consideration obtainable by the insured person for the insured article, when the insured person disposes of it, being less than the consideration which the insured person would have received due to the insured article having been damaged in an accident, notwithstanding that the article was competently repaired after the accident.
